

SUMMER LOW SHOES

The words of the man who said to paint his house any color, so it's red, could be paraphrased by Dame Fashion into "Wear any color shoes this summer you please so it's tan."

That we did not make any mistake in reading the shoe fashions months ago is shown by the extraordinarily large stock we have of the Tan Shoes for Women, Boys and Girls.

In Women's Shoes short vamps are the thing and are shown in low pumps and two eyelet styles.

Boys', Misses' and Girls' Shoes are shown in modifications of grown up fashions, youthful strictly up to date and some very snappy effects.

Prices for Women's Oxfords, $1.50 to 3.50
Prices for Boys' and Girls' Oxfords, 85c to 2.00

George W. Jackson of Bridgeport, Conn., formerly of Barre, writes the following interesting letter relative to the Barre of old: "Although Barre has not been my home for nearly 40 years naturally I have a kind feeling for the home of my childhood and therefore read the Barre Times. I noted in your columns the transfer of the Ephraim French estate and the statement that there were originally several acres with the property, including where the Jackson block and the old town building now stand. There were several acres, but where the Jackson block and the old town building now stand was never owned by Ephraim French. In 1859 and previous, the Ephraim French property was occupied by the old Hale tavern. The property where the Jackson block stands, and one half of the town building was owned by Nathan Morse; the other half of the town building was owned by Stillman Wood, who in those days carried on the tanner's business which was formerly owned by Mrs. Ephraim French's father, David French. While there are a good many people still living in Barre that recall the old Hale tavern and the Wood tannery with Mr. Morse's little shoe maker shop fronting on the street between them, the great numbers of your city have so changed that no doubt this information would not be interesting to them. I remember distinctly when only a small child that the old Brick Union Store managed by Mr. L. P. Aldrich, the building now standing, and one other store near the site of L. M. Averill's store were the only two stores in Barre village and in those days sidewalks were unknown to the village. It would be easy for me to give considerable data of changes that have come to Barre during the last 50 years, my purpose, however, was to correct the statement in regard to the original ownership of the property where the Jackson block and the old town property now stand."

Easy-Working Paint

A GOOD THING

Easy Working Paint is Economical Paint. There is a great deal of difference, however, between paints in regard to working qualities.

Hand-mixed and Ordinary Prepared Paint, because of improper mixing and grinding, or on account of adulteration or manufacturing on a guess work formula, work improperly. They drag under the brush, work "hard," spread unevenly.

B. P. S. Paint, on account of high-grade materials used—pure lead, zinc and linseed oil—perfect formula, and thoroughness of mixing and grinding, works freely, brushing out quickly and evenly.

This very important difference—known to all painters who have used B. P. S. Paint—enables the workman to do a much finer job and do it in fully 10 per cent. less time than when using hand-mixed or other prepared paint.

As the cost of applying paint is about twice the cost of the paint itself, the argument in favor of easy-working B. P. S. is self-evident. Owing to the purity of materials used, perfect formula, and absolute accuracy and thoroughness of mixing and grinding, B. P. S. paint gives the best possible results in easy-working qualities, covering and spreading capacity, fine finish and durability.
